New, Vari-Colored Hybrids To Dress Your Garden in Beauty

THESE AUTHENTIC, HARDY PERENNIALS THRIVE YEAR AFTER YEAR

It is not long since flower lovers associated Oriental Poppies only with brilliant splashes of rich scarlet—and rightly so. To-day, that is no longer true, for these lovely flowers, exotic and graceful as Chinese temple dancers, have been developed in recent years to new peaks of perfection, and their color variety has been expanded tremendously. Indeed, the scarlets have been joined by so many new shades and hues that many horticulturists—both amateur and professional—specialize in them, just as in such floral aristocrats as Iris, Roses, Orchids, etc.

We now find the newer Oriental Poppies in delicate pastels and deeper tints, ranging from cardinal scarlet to gossamer-like silver—in crimson, rose, pink, lilac, salmon, apricot, orange, white, tangerine, flesh, gold, coral—in a rainbow array that permits selection exactly to your preference.

YOU CAN GROW THEM ANYWHERE!

So remarkably hardy and adaptable are Oriental Poppies that they may be grown successfully almost anywhere. For best results follow these instructions. Buy Field-grown plants only and make your selection from the authentic plants offered in this folder. By making a liberal planting of these gorgeous new Poppies, your garden may easily become the showplace of your neighborhood. Don't crowd them in planting. A square foot of ground anywhere in the garden will provide ample growing space for an Oriental Poppy but a group of three or four of a kind planted in a triangle or square makes a much more impressive sight. Above all, use your imagination in planning. With proper groupings you will find your new Poppy Giants lending dramatic contrast to your Tall Bearded Iris, Delphiniums, Peonies, and other perennials gracing your garden. Varieties marked with an asterisk (*) should be grown in partial shade, for all they need is just a filtering of sunshine. Others may be grown in full sun or partial shade as preferred.

HEIGHTS DESIGNATED FOR YOUR GUIDANCE

The heights specified here are the heights as measured in my own Long Island Gardens. The heights will vary with soil fertility and general garden conditions, but those given will serve as a comparative guide.

A RECIPE FOR SUCCESS WITH POPPIES

Rule No. 1—Buy strong Field Grown Plants Only, that have been grown from root divisions of the original plant. That is the only kind I sell. DO NOT BUY POPPIES GROWN FROM SEED. It is a horticultural law that hybrid varieties cannot be grown true from seed. The seeds will grow, but the flowers are a disappointment and NEVER the same as the parent plant. The strong vigorous plants I will send you are Authentic Hybrid Varieties, grown from root divisions of the original plant. They are strong field grown plants, that will bloom profusely and will faithfully produce all the beauty of the originals. Therefore the first rule for success is to buy Wayman's New Exotic Hybrids, each plant an original Masterpiece.

Rule No. 2—Always plant Poppies in mid-summer, during their normal rest period. Poppies lapse into a siesta or rest period during mid-summer and for best results they should be planted at that time. The best time for planting them is during July, August or September, although it may be deferred until October if necessary. Vigorous growth is resumed in the fall, although in transplanting sometimes this growth is deferred until spring, but flowers may be expected the following summer. Each year the plant will increase in size and profusion of bloom and become more gloriously beautiful with each succeeding season. Once planted they will live for years with little or no care. To sum up Rule No. 2 I recommend that you place your order IMMEDIATELY, so that I can arrange to send the plants to you at just the right time for best results.

POPPIES FOR CUTTING

Contrary to general belief, Poppies are excellent as cut flowers if properly prepared. They should be cut just as the flower is freshly opened, then burn the ends of the stems over a flame until thoroughly charred to a length of one or two inches. Plunge the stem in cool deep water and place them in the shade where it is not too warm, for an hour or two. After this, add fresh cool water twice a day, morning and evening. I have known a bouquet of Poppies to remain in excellent condition for almost a week by this method of handling them.

Oriental Poppies

are not subject to insect pests or diseases. I have never known them to be attacked by anything. They will do well in any soil or location, from porous sandy soil to heavy clay. Lime or acid soil is equally suitable. Even fertilizer seems to be unnecessary as they will send their roots straight down to a depth of two or three feet and find nourishment where none would seem to exist. Just dig a hole anywhere in the garden and plant them with the root stock straight up and down, the top of the root being about 3 inches under ground. Water occasionally after planting, if the season is dry, and cover lightly the first winter. After that they will take care of themselves if you will just keep the weeds down around them. Fertilizers are not necessary unless the ground is too poor to grow weeds, although leaf mold or peat moss is beneficial.

Surely there is no other plant that will so readily adapt itself to its surroundings, requires so little care and will give so much permanent charm to the garden.

COLLECTION OF DAFFODILS NARCISSI AND JONQUILS

Lightly, April sprinkles the reborn earth with warm and gentle rain. The last snowpatches dissolve—when suddenly, almost before winter has had a chance to flee—Nature sends you her heralds of spring, Daffodils, Jonquils, and Narcissi, freshly clad in gleaming gold, gay yellow, and white. It's springtime and the sombre earth comes to life and takes on new beauty with a glamorous dress of spring-time glory.

You can enjoy these lovely jewels not only for one spring, but for many years to come. Because once you have one of our "Golden Gleam" collections, you have, quite literally, a lifetime possession—a treasure that can be yours for only a nominal outlay.

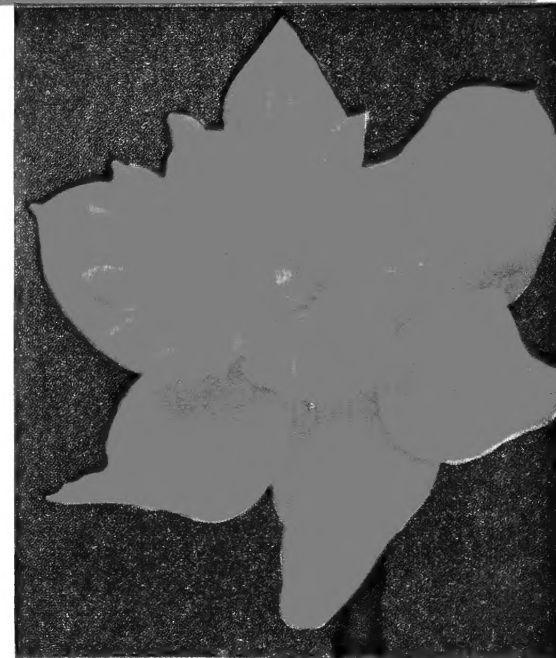

Every year after planting, my "Golden Gleam" beauties become more and more winsome and profuse, until each bulb multiplies into many, producing gorgeous blossoms by the armful, an almost inexhaustible supply for cutting, without affecting your magnificent garden display.

Illustrated are just a few of the many types in our collection. Only the finer types are included, among them the popular deep yellow Trumpet Daffodils, and the newer bicolor and all-white hybrids. Also Barri, Leedsii, Poet's, and Double Narcissi, as well as sweet-scented Jonquils and their Hybrids. No doubt about it—you'll be as proud and delighted with this mixture as I am. It's superb.

Not the least of the advantages these "Golden Gleams" offer is their unusual hardiness. Once planted, they may be left undisturbed for years. A good example is a fifteen year old planting that is still at the height of its glory at the Wayman home. Yet it has received almost no attention from the beginning.

Our Daffodils, Narcissi, and Jonquils will thrive in any ordinary soil, under full sunlight or in partial shade. And how tactfully they make their entrance and exit on your garden's stage! Before the perennials appear, or shrubs and trees are in foliage, the "Golden Gleams" play their charming roles, coloring your borders in many gay tints. And then, when the others are ready, they leave quietly, hiding until their return engagement next spring. As often as April comes, so will they reappear. All they ask in return is a smile of recognition for the unending pleasure they can give you.

HYBRID DELPHINIUMS

These glorious perennials have long been favorites, but they have usually been identified with large estates, which spend greater-than-average time and expense on their gardens. But now we are able to offer these long-spined beauties to everyone, not only at amazingly reasonable cost, but also in supreme quality; improved year after year until the modern types bear no resemblance to former Delphiniums than a modern hair-do bears to the hairdress of 50 years ago. The Hybrid Delphiniums we send from our nurseries are absolutely the world's choicest strains. They are superb! Look at the illustration. The florets of our charming patricians are easily four times the size of those shown! Think of them in your own garden, forming a multi-colored backdrop for the Poppies, Iris, Phlox, Peonies, Daylilies, etc. The rich, vibrant colorings range from deep delphinium blues and purples to light blues, lavenders, mauves, and combinations of these colors—also pure snow-white. The flower stalks are often 4 to 5 feet tall and are breath-taking in their magnificence. And, of course, nothing is more gorgeous for indoor decoration than spikes of these newer Hybrid Delphiniums.
